

HYDE SCHOOL DORMITORY — This is the new student housing construction under way at Hyde School, an independent secondary school for boys that opened last year. The construction nearly doubles the capacity of the school, located on the heavily wooded former Hyde estate off High Street at Bath. Students for the new academic year register today. Some 105 Boys Register Today At Bath's Hyde School

BATH — Some 105 boys, representing 17 states and two foreign countries register today at Hyde School to start its second academic year.

Nazil Allefa from Kuwait and James Irving from New Brunswick, Canada, will be the first foreign students to attend this college preparatory school for boys in Bath.

A new dormitory is being constructed to house the increased number of boys at the rapidly growing school. The enrollment for this year is almost double that of last year.

Boys scheduled to live in the new dormitory will be placed in a local hotel and motel until the structure is completed in the near future.

To keep its excellent teacher-student ratio, four new faculty members have been added. James Carifio, a graduate of Columbia University and the University of Edinburg, has joined the English department. Timothy Ellis, a graduate of Bowdoin, will teach mathematics. During the summer months, Ellis is the director of Camp Chewonki at Wiscasset.

ROBERT BEETSCHY, who received his degree from Hofstra, will teach chemistry, a newly instituted course this year.

Paul Gleye, who received his master's from Boston University Extension in Heidelberg, Germany, and Jean Audoin des Cartiers of Aix-de-Provence, France, will constitute the French department.

The humanities course composed of art, music, religion and philosophy, will again be taught by members of the Bowdoin College faculty.

Among the innovations this year is a new outdoors activity known as woods and water program. This program, under the direction of faculty members Earle Warren and Douglas Vollmer, is based on concepts of the Outward Bound schools located throughout the country that present physical challenge and teach self reliance.

The school is headed by Joseph W. Gauld, who holds a B.A. from Bowdoin College and an M.A. in mathematics from Boston University.

HYDE SCHOOL is located in an area that was the first settlement in the New World established by the Popham Colony in 1607. It was here, in Bath, that the first ship in this country was built.

Leading the list of students are 34 from Massachusetts and 20 from Maine. Other states represented are New York, Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Vermont, New Jersey, Connecticut, Kentucky, Michigan, Wisconsin, Delaware, Virginia, Idaho, Utah, Illinois, California, as well as the countries of Kuwait and Canada.

St. Athanasius Revamps CCD Classes At Rumford

RUMFORD — The Confraternity of Christian Doctrine classes at St. Athanasius will undergo a complete change in schedule and format under the direction of the Rev. Richard Murray.

The most notable change will be a social get together. Public school children in grades one through six will attend classes beginning Saturday from 10:15 a.m.

Beginning next Sunday classes for the seventh and eighth grades will be held from
